

Health and Safety

For Allianz PNB Life, it's always important to have those who work for you to be fit, healthy and happy. This is done through creating a work culture that promotes health through all aspects of their lives. Since most people spend most of their adult life at work, it's no surprise that they want to be happy.

Underlining the importance of health will help employees is important. There is no doubt that placing an emphasis on employee health and wellbeing contributes heavily to an employee's overall engagement within the business. Promoting health is no longer seen as an initiative that yields 'soft' results. Instead, health promotion ensures that your staff actually wants and likes to be at work. Over time, this has a drastic effect on the businesses performance. Often health improves many areas of the business. Areas that not only improve production, but make money.

Allianz PNB Life Annual Medical Examination for employees was on May 8, 2017.
